

The text is a “notice of intention” written by the Australian Federal Government Airports Commission.

2.4 Remedial Measures

The current level of delays to passengers and aircraft during peak periods at Sydney airport is already widely regarded as being unacceptable. The situation will be exacerbated by any further growth in traffic levels. If an adequate standard of airport facilities is to be available to meet the economic and social needs of Sydney, immediate action needs to be taken to initiate the development of additional runway capacity and to ensure that Sydney airport operates as efficiently as possible until such time as the additional capacity can be provided.

(Federal Airports Commission 1989)